Six Years Ago A Secret Was—

Six years ago today the second atomic bomb was dropped. The city of Nagasaki was the victim. More than 60,000 of its people were killed and all its installations destroyed. Three days before, on Aug. 6, the first bomb had similarly destroyed Hiroshima.

The Russians hurriedly entered the war against Japan. The Japanese initiated surrender feelers.

The atomic age had begun, for better, for worse.

The Army and Navy were caught flat-footed with surprise.

Few knew the secret of the bomb. The chiefs of staff had set November 1 for invasion of the Japanese islands. The estimated casualties, killed and wounded, ran as high as 1,000,000 Americans. It is easy to forget now, but in those days a great cloud of dread hung over the American people as they calculated that invasion cost. These fears, and their legitimate anger at Russia for not coming into the war, had led previously to political decisions, unfortunately based entirely on military needs, at Yalta and at Potsdam. None knew for sure the bomb would work. It was a step into the unknown. Today there are theorists who argue the bombs should not have been dropped, that Japan was "nearer to surrender" than we knew, and so on. Those people did not so argue in 1945. Their policy grows out of the accumulated antagonisms for the late Franklin D. Roosevelt and his successor. The facts are the Japanese did know the war was lost by the summer of 1945. But they were prepared to die on their islands and would have defended them with all they had left—which was not inconsiderable, either in manpower or material.

Soviet Plan For Peace Hit By Acheson

5-Power Pact Held Propaganda Move

By PAUL P. KENNEDY

New York Times News Service, Special to The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Secretary of State Acheson said Wednesday he considered Russia's latest five-power peace pact proposal the first of a series of "propaganda" moves to be taken between now and September when the Japanese peace conference opens in San Francisco.

He indicated he expected these moves would be a Soviet effort to sabotage the conference.

RUSSIA'S ACTION

Acheson was asked at his news conference about the Soviet peace proposal and also about Russia's action in publicizing Tuesday, a month after their reception, the United States Congressional resolution of friendship for Russian people and President Truman's accompanying letter.

The Secretary said he was glad the documents were publicized, but later warned that neither the peace proposal nor the publicizing of the United States presentation could be construed as meaning a "genuine change" in Soviet policy. "The Iron Curtain remains a basic obstacle to the attainment of that peace which will ease the tension in people's minds everywhere," he said.

His own conjecture, he said, as to why the Soviet allowed the United States resolution and President Truman's letter to be publicized was "because two documents were received and they had a vast amount of publicity and something had to be done about it." He then asked a reporter, "What would you have done in their place. Sit on the documents or release them?"

At the outset of his news conference Acheson read a prepared statement relating to a Soviet proposal received here Monday asking for a five-power conference leading toward a peace pact. "Why only five powers to make peace?" the Secretary asked. "We already have a peace pact, not only among five powers, but among 60 nations, in the United Nations Charter."

INVITATION TO REDS

Acheson renewed the U. S. invitation to the Soviet Government to work toward "concrete realistic agreements" within the UN rather than through a "vague five-power pact." In extending this invitation Acheson cited three UN resolutions, by joining, without reservation, in carrying out the programs embodied in these three resolutions, he said, "the Soviet Government could show its will for peace, not merely in words but by deeds."

The three resolutions were: "Essentials of Peace" adopted by the General Assembly Dec. 1, 1949; "Peace Through Deeds" adopted by the General Assembly Nov. 17, 1950; and "Uniting for Peace," adopted Nov. 3, 1950. The five-nation Soviet bloc voted against each of the resolutions.

The "Essentials of Peace" resolution called upon member nations to refrain from threats or use of force contrary to the UN Charter and to refrain from any threats or acts "impairing the freedom, independence or integrity of any state."

UNITING FOR PEACE

The "Peace Through Deeds" resolution asked nations to agree to accept effective international control of atomic energy under the United Nations.

The "Uniting for Peace" resolution was essentially a reaffirmation of the earlier "Essentials of Peace" resolution. Moreover it established a Peace Observation Commission to be composed of 14 members. This resolution also gave power to the Security Council to call into emergency session the General Assembly to consider a possible threat to the peace, breach of the peace or act of aggression.

At the opening session on Monday, Stokes had read a preliminary statement recapitulating the steps that had led up to the new negotiations in the oil dispute and outlining the general British approach to the problems involved, with indications as to what he thought might constitute a logical plan of attack.

Stokes's statement, handed to the Iranian delegation in the form of an aide memoire, was considered by the Iranian cabinet and members of the Iranian delegation in the course of special meetings held Tuesday night and Wednesday morning at Premier Mohammed Mossadegh's town house.

At a press conference Wednesday morning Stokes said he was expecting the Iranian reply to his aide memoire Wednesday night. Apparently, however, the Iranians were a little reluctant to take

Reds Acknowledge Ridgway's Demand

Peiping Calls U. S. Insincere For Not Accepting Its Terms

By LINDESEY PARROTT

New York Times News Service, Special to The Atlanta Constitution

TOKYO, Aug. 9.—The armistice talks in the Korean war remained in abeyance for the fifth straight day Thursday, with little likelihood that they could be resumed within less than 24 hours even if agreement is reached over United Nations Commander Gen. Ridgway's demand for further guarantees against Communist violation of the neutral zone around the city of Kaesong.

Thursday morning, Peiping radio, over which the enemy command previously has answered Ridgway's communications, made its first mention of the General's message, transmitted on Tuesday.

Peiping announced the United Nations commander Tuesday made a reply to the Communist explanation on the previous day of the incident Saturday in Kaesong in which "no date was mentioned" for resumption of the armistice conversations. But the broadcast failed to explain the reasons Ridgway gave why the Allied delegation was still withholding participation in further talks—a definite guarantee from the Communists that the armed Chinese demonstration around the United Nations billets at Kaesong would not be repeated. Instead the propaganda move was chosen to attack "American sincerity" in failing to resume on Communist terms.

STAY AT CAMP

The UN delegates, headed by V-Adm. Charles Turner Joy, Thursday morning remained at the advance camp in an apple orchard inside the Allied lines on the road to Kaesong where they returned Wednesday afternoon after conferences with Gen. Ridgway in Tokyo. There were Joy, Maj. Gen. Henry I. Hodes, Maj. Gen. Laurence C. Craigie and R-Adm. Arleigh Burke, joined by South Korean Maj. Gen. Paik Sun Yup, the fifth member of the United Nations party which has discussed a truce with the Chinese and North Korean generals at 19 sessions in the ruined Korean town.

DOUBTS "ACCIDENT"

The next move plainly was up to the enemy. Ridgway had informed them first that he doubted the explanation that a company of Chinese troops armed with mortars and machine guns was in the Kaesong area by accident Saturday just before the talks were suspended, second, that any further similar violation would be considered a deliberate move on the part of the Communists to end the conversations and, third, he demanded acceptance of this condition by North Korean Premier Kim Il Sung and Chinese Gen. Peng Teh Jui.

Ellis, is the first in a weekly series which will see persons prominent in the news interviewed by Atlanta newsmen.

The Constitution sponsored the opening program. Atlanta Journal newsmen will interview Mayor Hartsfield on next week's program.

Martin, just returned from reporting the Korean War for The Constitution and The Saturday Evening Post, told the panel that "there is a good chance that we can win Communist China away from the Russian orbit."

"We will not be able to swing them into a Chiang Kai-shek orbit," he said, but it's possible we can swing them into our orbit."

Martin said, in reply to a question about the buffer zone disagreement in current peace talks, that "we won't fall back on our present positions. The Hwachon Reservoir is too vital to South Korea for one thing, and we can trade control of the sea and air for ground."

Under the latest NPA order, according to contractors, architects and building experts here, only the smallest type of residence can now be built and the existing restrictions on credit have already served to cut the number of such structures to a figure 40 percent below that of June, 1950.

By its M-4A order, issued Aug. 3, the National Production Authority "froze" until Oct. 1 the start on new industrial and commercial buildings, apartment houses and hospitals, apartment houses and hospitals.

HITS SMALL HOMES

The same order specifies that no individual one-family dwelling can be started if it requires more than 1,800 pounds of carbon steel, including its plumbing supply lines, or more than 35 pounds of copper.

George H. Bond, of Cooper, Bond & Cooper, Inc., an architectural firm engaged largely in the planning of all types of structures except residences, said that the latest NPA order "has absolutely paralyzed the construction industry in the Atlanta area in all fields of building except residences."

"We are now afraid that this order will be continued after Oct. 1."

CONTRACTORS DISCOURAGED

Luther Stephens, executive secretary of the Home Builders Association of Atlanta, said that the order has discouraged Atlanta area contractors who specialize in residential building.

Minimum steel requirements for a 1,000-square-foot house (maximum under the new order) are: Nails, 600 pounds; water pipes and heater, 350 pounds; furnace, 300 pounds; electric fixtures, 100 pounds; hardware, 50 pounds, Stephens said.

This adds up to 1,400 of the 1,800 pounds allotted and still to be had are gutters, downspouts, screens, flashings, etc.

Credit restrictions were blamed by Stephens for the drop from 2,090 building permits issued in June, 1950, to the 560 permits issued in June, 1951. One-family house permits decreased 40 percent.

Some of the telephone calls, including one from as far away as Lookout Mountain, Tenn., poured into WSB-TV Wednesday night after the presentation of "Press Gallery," a new local program which featured Constitution War Correspondent Harold Martin being interviewed by Editor Ralph McGill and Columnists Jack Tarver and Celestine Sibley.

All those who called were enthusiastic over the show, the television station reported.

Further Price Advances Forecast by DiSalle Here

5 to 8 Percent Increases in 1951 Predicted by Stabilizing Chief

By BILL BORING

Michael V. DiSalle, the price fixer, came to Atlanta Wednesday with the news—as if everybody didn't already know—that your living costs are going up.

The colorful, roly-poly director of the Office of Price Stabilization said his organization was going to try its dead-level best to keep prices down, but he didn't see how it could be done under the new price control laws Congress has given us.

DiSalle agreed along with his bosses, Charles E. Wilson, director of the Office of Defense Mobilization, and Eric Johnston, head of the Economic Stabilization Agency, that living costs are likely to advance 5 to 8 percent in the coming year.

"In my judgment," he said, "there is only a minimum of hope for the world we live in. The war can and will be resolved short of war. Trends from cold to hot war, from little wars to big wars, do not have a tendency to reverse themselves short of an all-out explosion. So, while we seek for defense, seek to expedite the rearmament program and pray for world peace and a better understanding, we might as well face the tragic realities of the present situation.

"I agree with the military officials that war is not inevitable and I think it would be a tragic mistake for us to discount our efforts toward a peaceful settlement of the differences which exist between the United States and Russia," he declared.

This action came after Councilman Wayne Blanchard announced he would introduce a paper in Council to outlaw motorized ice cream salesmen.

Masters, chairman of the organization's safety committee, called for banning all ice cream peddlers from Atlanta streets.

Masters and Club President Charles H. Meyer said the resolution was passed by the club Tuesday night for health and safety reasons.

More Aid for Chiang Kai-Shek

The administration has asked Congress to approve a $307,000,000 aid program to Chiang Kai-shek, claiming it is to enable him to defend the island, and not necessarily become an aggressor.

This is not likely a change of policy toward, or an endorsement of, Chiang Kai-shek. It can be analyzed as a bid for strength and a notice to the Russians, Koreans and Chinese that if the talks at Kaesong break down we will remain in the war and will increase our strength by newly equipped and trained forces from Formosa.

By all accounts Chiang has a good hardcore of personnel, well trained and ready for combat, totaling about 40,000 men. But, he has under training perhaps 30 divisions, give or take five. In other words, if they are combat divisions of 15,000 men each, he has a force of about 400,000 men.

If we could take about seven divisions, or about 100,000 of these, we could throw against the Chinese and North Koreans a force of Chinese, Koreans and United Nations troops from many countries. The propaganda value would be good, as would the practical results. Our leaders would be worried. They have never trusted Chiang's troops and few are the commanders who would even now want them on their flanks. But, integrated with other battle-tested men, they would be of value.

At any rate, this decision to ask for aid to Chiang's army is a forceful reminder to the Russians and a Chinese that we do not intend to leave Korea until there is a truce and the best possible guarantee against new aggression.

Viewed in that light, the administration's request is a wise one. By all means let the men be trained. If we do have to use them we will want them to be as effective as possible.

Local Election of Local Officials

Tuesday's state-wide election to fill vacancies in the office of solicitor general in three judicial circuits cost the taxpayers an estimated $50,000 or, roughly, $2 per vote.

In Fulton County alone the election cost more than $4,000 and only about 450 voters went to the polls. The cost per vote here was slightly less than $10.

Though Tuesday's election was occasioned by an oversight in drafting new provisions on filling vacancies in the 1945 state constitution—an oversight that surely will be remedied as soon as the General Assembly can submit an appropriate amendment to the people—the ridiculous waste and expense of such a vote points to another needed change in our election laws.

Tuesday's election was a state-wide one because solicitors general, along with superior court judges, are classified as state officers. On numerous occasions the General Assembly has considered measures which would provide for election of these officials by the voters in their own circuit alone. That is a sensible proposal and it ought to be adopted. Superior court judges and solicitors properly are local officials and should be elected as such.

Another New Plant for Georgia

The proposed construction of a paperboard plant near Jesup which is expected to represent an eventual investment of $15,000,000 to $25,000,000 is another big step forward in Georgia's industrialization program.

Announcement of the plant follows by only a few weeks the announcement that a $20,000,000 mill will be established at Rome by the Mead Corporation. It is a good omen that two more national concerns came to almost simultaneous decision to locate in the state.

The Jesup plant will be built by the Mengel Company which operates a number of corrugated box plants in other states.

We join in welcoming the new company to Georgia and congratulate Jesup and Wayne County on being chosen as the location for so promising a development.

Ice Cream Vendors and Children

In a 48-hour period in Atlanta two young children have been struck down and killed by automobiles while crossing the street to or from an ice cream truck, the likes of which visit residential sections of the city in a steady stream during the warm months.

It was the third such death this season. In the words of the Greater Atlanta Safety Council, something must be done.

The ice cream vendors must share responsibility along with parents and motorists. They are morally, and probably legally, responsible to a great degree. In one of the two recent fatalities, the victim already had made her purchase and was returning across the street when she was struck. In the second accident the child was struck while crossing the street to get to the vendor's truck.

Parents who allow small children to cross the street unescorted are inviting a repetition of such accidents.

Councilman Wayne Blanchard has proposed that City Council ban motorized ice cream trucks from the streets. While we commend Mr. Blanchard's motives and appreciate his grave concern over the situation, it ought to be pointed out that a great many vendors in the city use push-carts. To prohibit truck vendors would be merely to increase the number of push-cart vendors.

If all vendors and parents would follow the six rules laid down by the Safety Council in a letter to vendors, the likelihood of more child deaths from this cause would be greatly diminished.

The rules are:

1. Encourage parents to accompany a child when he is crossing the street.
2. Escort a child across the street when an adult does not accompany him.
3. Park the vehicle as near the right curb as possible.
4. Sell only from the curb side of the vehicle.
5. Park 100 to 150 feet from an intersection.
6. Avoid parking directly behind or in front of any parked car which might block visibility.

We have another suggestion. It is that City Council outlaw the use of bells or music-making devices on all vending vehicles, push-carts or trucks. These noise-makers properly can be classified as a public nuisance. Moreover, the noise is confusing and easily could contribute toward more accidents.

Whatever else is done, the vendors must be made to understand their share of the responsibility for the safety of their child patrons. It may be that serious consideration ought to be given to banning both the push-cart and truck vendors from the streets.

'Mistaken Idea'

The Editors: People in the South have the mistaken idea that they love their section more than residents of other areas. I have found in my travels people love the section where they were born and reared.

I sure hated to leave my home town and move South. According to the Southern manner, I should have had my home-town paper make a big fuss about it as follows as they do in the South:

"Mrs. Grand Army of the Republic is moving South, however she will continue to be narrow, and provincial, and not try to conform to life as lived there. She hates to leave the rich old loamy black soil of her beloved Northland; however she is taking a picture of Gen. U. S. Grant with her to hang over her mantel, which I am sure will make the people there simply adore her."

Can a Politician Also Be Honest?

Can a person hold a political job and be honest? How does one go about being a successful politician? One of Georgia's most successful political figures, former Gov. Arnall, was asked these questions by law students at Emory University in a forum. The first pertinent question shows the damaging effect the graft and corruption by some politicians has had on the entire field of public office.

"There are more honest politicians than there are corrupt politicians," Arnall shot back. It is probable that the people generally have overlooked this fact in all the publicity on crooked politicians. The spotlight has been on Washington where a sickening number of men in high office have been exposed as grafters. Occasionally, the audit will show a few people in state government doing something wrong. This is highly publicized to keep the people alert on their government, and to warn others not to steal.

Day by day, though, hundreds of state officials and employees, and thousands of national officials and employees, go along faithfully and honestly performing their duties. It is doubtful if there are any more crooks in governmental jobs than there are in any other type of profession. They get more publicity because they are stealing mine and your money.

Lax Interest "Politicians are as good as the people force them to be," Arnall told the students. "Sometimes Americans are fortunate in getting better government than they deserve, from the amount of interest they take in it."

The people are constantly urged to take more interest in politics. The second question, then, is how does one go about becoming successful in politics?

Well, Ellis Arnall started running for the Legislature about the time he left school. He ran for Speaker Pro Tem soon after his nomination. After becoming Attorney General, he campaigned for almost two years for the Governorship before defeating the incumbent, the late Gov. "Gene" Talmadge. What is Arnall's advice on success in politics?

"Start at the bottom," he said. "Get active at the precinct level and work your way upward. The trouble with most newcomers in politics is the same as those in business—they want to start out as President of the company."

Attack Arnall took a backhanded slap at Roy Harris for his attacks on Emory University—a slap that also hit Gov. Talmadge. Said Arnall: "I have read there are some who look askance at this great University . . . some doubt that financial grants should be continued . . . some wonder if this school is not educating hot-heads. . . I am delighted to be here. . . I feel that this Christian University will mean much to the progress of our nation and to the cause of academic freedom."

The political talk by Arnall, after many months of political silence, is causing speculation.

Governor Arnall predicted the person who wins the next Governor's race will be someone who had "nothing to do with enactment of the sales tax which is shacking the people of Georgia." We don't agree. There has been a minimum of criticism of the sales tax even now, before the expanded program of state services is put into effect. The Governor's race is three years off. If the Talmadge administration carries out its promise of expansion of schools, roads, welfare, and health (and the first month's operation under the expanded program indicates it will), a majority of the people of Georgia won't resent the fact that the Legislature voted for a sales tax in 1950 to finance these services.

A sales tax alone is unfair. The Talmadge administration will have time to complete total tax revision before election time. Perhaps three or four years from now, a sales tax won't be needed. Gov. Talmadge, who also had expressed opposition to a sales tax, showed courage in sponsoring it as necessary to finance expanded services at this time. Talmadge, himself, will be constitutionally barred from running for Governor next time. But with schools getting unprecedented aid, roads being paved and health and welfare facilities being increased, we cannot see Georgians turning on those men—Talmadge critics as well as Talmadge supporters in the General Assembly—who devised a way to pay for these services which the people demanded.

GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

What Standards In the Senate?

WASHINGTON—The country will see some point to the moralizing that has been going on against members of the U. S. Senate who have professed feelings of profound shock over the revelation of cheating at West Point but who have shown a callous disregard of the moral squalor involving two of its own members in the Maryland election case.

By a coincidence the two stories broke on the same day. The special Senate committee which investigated the Butler-Tydings contest in Maryland filed its report about the same time the West Point dismissals were announced. Many senators blasted the West Point cheaters, yet had little or nothing to say about the "horrible Maryland election case."

Since then Sen. William Benton (Dem., Conn.) has put the matter in truer focus by offering a resolution aimed at the expulsion of Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, Wisconsin Republican who played a leading underhand role in the Maryland contest.

Report The Senate committee, made up of three Democrats and two Republicans, unanimously denounced "the despicable 'back-street' type of campaign" that was run in Maryland last year in behalf of Sen. John Marshall Butler, Republican, who defeated former Sen. Millard Tydings, Democrat.

The low and fraudulent character of the campaign was typified by the publication of a fake photograph purporting to have Senator Tydings engaged in friendly discourse with Communist leader Earl Browder. Senator McCarthy is shown to have been the moving spirit behind much of the shady practices revealed. Even the committee report described him as one of the major outside influences responsible for the dirty work, with members of his staff actively taking part.

In view of the indictment brought against McCarthy by an official investigating body of the Senate itself, Senator Benton says the chamber has no course but to move his expulsion.

Through some strange process of reasoning, the committee found the evidence did not justify the unseating of Senator Butler, though he was the beneficiary of the unsavory tactics employed.

'Courtesy' It is interesting to consider what the Senate would do to these two men if, divorced of their present status, their names should come before the body for confirmation of some presidential appointment. Both would be slaughtered, beyond doubt.

But the thing called senatorial courtesy, which is a product of the club atmosphere that prevails in the Senate, will probably allow both to keep their seats. The Benton resolution bearing on McCarthy will hardly command the necessary two-thirds majority for passage.

McCarthy is all the more of a stigma on the Senate because of his record of making all sorts of irresponsible charges smearing officials as Communists and fellow travelers. Until the Senate clears its list of men who have arrived there by cheating and who have practiced open frauds behind the immunity given by the chamber, it ill behooves the body to condemn a few cadets at West Point who got caught engaging in the ancient though somewhat honorable practice of cribbing.

The Senate itself sets an immoral standard by permitting McCarthys and Butlers to sit in its ranks.

JOHN MARVIN RAST

"A man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth."—Luke 12:15.

Martin Luther testified that he had held many things in his hands, and had lost them all; but whatever he had placed in God's hand, that he still possessed.

Is not this also your testimony and mine? Many among us today are slaves to stuff. Some have much, some little.

It is not the quantity that determines our peace. It is our basic attitude, our conception of money.

If gain is with us a mania, never satiated, we shall know no peace and our lives will be largely fruitless.

To heed the call of God to a stewardship of production, of saving and of giving is the highway to joyous possession.

A Mirror on Motor Manners

Courtesy pays, but rudeness slays. That in general was the theme of a "guest" column yesterday from E. C. Sanders' Rockmart Journal. The Sanders claim was that lack of manners is as much a cause of highway accidents as carelessness. Further evidence to substantiate his claim is that a traffic rating test recently released puts the emphasis on being a gentleman or lady at the wheel. The questionnaire comes from the Automotive Safety Foundation. If you answer "yes" on eight of the nine questions, your rating is excellent. Seven "yes" means good, five and you're only fair. If you answer "yes" on less, then you'd better get a horse or stay off the streets. Here are the nine queries with a space provided for you to check your answers:

- (1) Do you drive and walk as you want your teen-ager to drive and walk? Yes—No—
- (2) Do you devote full time and attention to your driving, not allowing yourself to be distracted by a charming companion, beautiful scenery, an exciting game on your radio, or an argument with your wife? Yes—No—
- (3) Do you control that impulse to blow your horn or "blow your top" at the actions of pedestrians or other drivers, even though you yourself do the very same things, such as cutting in and out of traffic or dawdling along in the middle of the road? Yes—No—
- (4) Do you adjust your speed at all times to existing road, traffic and weather conditions, especially at night; in rain, fog or snow and on icy roads; and drive so that you can always stop "within the assured clear distance ahead?" Yes—No—
- (5) Do you really give pedestrians and other drivers the right of way? Yes—No—
- (6) Do you put a definite very low limit on the number of beers, cocktails or highballs that you take if you are going to drive? If you have gone over your limit, do you turn the wheel over to the nondrinker to drive, take a cab, or wait till your head clears before driving? Yes—No—
- (7) Do you communicate your intentions well in advance to other drivers and pedestrians, by means of hand or turn signals, flashing of your stop light, and position of your vehicle on the roadway? Yes—No—
- (8) Do you keep under control the urge to indulge in impatient driving, with violent starts, stops and turns? Yes—No—
- (9) For women only—Do you expect no more than equal consideration from men drivers at all times in the right-of-way? Yes—No—
- (10) For men only—If the driver in front of you does something she shouldn't, do you refrain from muttering "woman driver"? Yes—No—

Count up now and 'fess up. How do you rate?

THOMAS L. STOKES

Politics—In The Better Sense

WASHINGTON—It often takes a newcomer with the "outside look" to remind an old institution, such as the United States Senate, of its standards and its obligations to itself and the nation. In the case of such a clubby and self-protective fraternity as the Senate that, incidentally calls for considerable courage. That's what Sen. William Burton (Dem., Conn.), previously a businessman, has done for the Senate through his resolution asking it to investigate whether Sen. Joe McCarthy (Rep., Wis.) should be expelled for his activity in last year's Maryland campaign and "his other acts since his election to the Senate." These latter, as everyone knows, include the vilification without foundation of many persons—the majority of them in the State Department but also Secretary of Defense George C. Marshall—which was done behind the senator's cloak of congressional immunity. His conduct has introduced a new word into our language—"McCarthyism."

Months ago, seven of the Wisconsin senator's Republican colleagues spoke out in a "declaration of conscience" against the technique he has used.

Two of the senator's Republican colleagues, Sens. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine and Robert C. Hendrickson of New Jersey, joined in the report of the rules and administration subcommittee headed by Sen. Mike Monroney (Dem., Okla.) which investigated the 1950 Maryland campaign. That report scored the campaign conducted on behalf of Sen. John M. Butler (Rep., Md.) in which Senator McCarthy and members of his staff participated, as the "despicable 'back-street' type" and as a "campaign of 'blackmail' and 'bribe' which the subcommittee found. . . Senator McCarthy's staff had helped to prepare. . . It was directed at the veteran Sen. Millard F. Tydings (Dem., Md.) whom Senator Butler defeated.

Senator Tydings' offense, as far as Senator McCarthy was concerned, was that he was chairman of the Senate foreign relations subcommittee which investigated the Wisconsin senator's charges of Communists in the State department and found them without any proof whatever. Senator McCarthy was severely criticized in a majority report, whereupon he cried "whitewash." To this day he has not come up with a single name, which is often overlooked in the furor he stirred up recklessly all over the country.

With the Maryland election report the bill of particulars against the Wisconsin senator, himself, is growing longer and it is based on proved facts. Senator Benton boldly took the leadership to use the record for an expulsion move. This serves to concentrate the issue against the Wisconsin senator and McCarthyism as an offense against the Senate itself, its standards and its traditions.

It offers a rallying point for those who want to hold McCarthyism up to the light so that all citizens see its dangers to fundamental American rights. Politely suggesting that Senator McCarthy resign forthwith, Senator Benton said that is what "a high percentage of members of this body" would do in the face of such a report by five of his colleagues as that on the Maryland campaign.

Senator Benton's move was immediately hailed by Senator Wherry (Nebraska), Republican leader, as political in motive, which was of course not unusual. It was that, of course, representing a long-delayed counterattack to meet an issue that was effectively exploited against the Democratic Party in the 1950 elections and, from all signs, is to be used again.

But it is more than "politics" in the usual sense. It is politics in the better sense where a member of a responsible party undertakes to rally his party to strike at an influence—McCarthyism, in this instance—which is harmful to our politics and our society.

"Government price controls will continue with half-hearted effectiveness and it is up to the public to give battle to the inflation spiral by acquiring only what is actually needed."—Trade note.

We hear folks complaining wherever we go . . . that the prices are high and the incomes are low . . . their standard of living is cut to the bone . . . and the times are the toughest they ever have known.

Now, let us be honest, let's both tell the truth . . . we had very much less in the days of our youth . . . the wages were little and prices were low . . . and we did without much but continued to grow . . . if the stuff was too high, we would pass it up then . . . and I bet if we tried we could do it again.

"Now, why doesn't Truman and Congress," folks say . . . "do something to cut the high prices we pay?"

"Controls," we have had them, what good did they do . . . there's always some crook who will sell it to you . . . there's always a sucker, a prospect in sight . . . to prove that the statement of Barnum was right . . . you just let the stuff rest awhile on the shelves . . . and the people who sell it will come to themselves.

But . . . we either don't care, or we don't understand . . . the immutable law of "supply and demand."

Maryland Vote Probers Assigned McCarthy Case

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—(P)—The Senate committee which denounced some of the tactics in the 1950 Maryland senatorial contest as "despicable" was assigned Wednesday to pass on a move to oust Joseph R. McCarthy (Rep., Wis.) from the Senate for his part in the campaign.

Will There Be Enough Teachers?

With 10,000 more students expected in Georgia schools this fall than ever before, and with the Minimum Foundation Plan going into effect, will there be enough teachers to meet the demands?

Committee Clips Billion From ECA

By FELIX BELAIR
New York Times News Service
Special to The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—The House Foreign Affairs Committee rode roughshod over administration protests Wednesday to clip about $1,000,000,000 from the pending $8,500,000,000 military and economic foreign aid program and to provide for its administration by an independent agency under an official of cabinet rank.

In a sudden burst of speed calculated to bring a bill before the House Thursday, the committee rejected eleven-hour appeals from Secretary of State Acheson, and William C. Foster, Economic Co-operation Administrator, that it reconsider a $700,000,000 cut proposed by Rep. Richards of South Carolina, committee chairman.

CONGRESS PRESSURE

The State Department already had capitulated for the administration to mounting Congressional demands for the "single agency" plan of administering the global military and economic aid plan. It remained to be decided whether the International Security Affairs committee of the State Department was to be abolished altogether or to undertake presidential assignments.

It was the administration's proposal that its mutual security program be administered jointly by the Departments of State and Defense and the Economic Co-operation Administration, with the International Security Affairs Committee functioning as a coordinating agency.

BRADLEY SUMMONED

At the other end of the Capitol, the Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services Committees summoned Gen. Bradley, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, to discuss in secret session Thursday an administration proposal for $307,000,000 of military and economic aid to the Chinese Nationalist Government of Formosa.

Meanwhile, the Senate group heard testimony from R. Allen Griffin, director of the ECA's Far Eastern division, that substantial American aid to Formosa will be required "indefinitely" or as long as we hope to keep that island out of Communist hands.

Sen. Connally of Texas, chairman of the foreign relations group, quoted the witness as saying that "Formosa cannot support itself plus the Chinese Nationalist Government and military establishment plus the Chinese refugees from the mainland." Sen. Connally said $90,000,000 of the $307,000,000 proposed for Formosa would go for economic aid and accounted for almost half of the total economic assistance planned for all Southeast Asia.

A Man and a Hospital Mission

The Rev. John E. Summer said he didn't have all the facts about the hospital on paper, but to go ahead and ask questions, for, he said, "What isn't written down is in my head and heart." The Rev. Mr. Summer was speaking of the $5,000,000 hospital he hopes to see built to serve the more than 90,000 persons embraced in an area covered by South Fulton, Clayton and Fayette Counties. A retired Methodist minister who served 50 years in the South Georgia Conference, the Rev. Mr. Summer is at 78 years of age a man with a mission. And that hospital is it. The area with which the retired minister is concerned is that embraced by the cities of Hapeville, East Point, College Park, Fairburn, Palmetto and the counties of Clayton and Fayette. His thesis is that this section has shown a remarkable growth in the past few years and that the time has come for the building of a central hospital under auspices of the Hill-Burton Act to give needed hospital service to the people of his section.

In addition to thinking something should be done, the Rev. Mr. Summer has applied himself to the problem. And he is beginning to see the light over the horizon. He points out that where as Atlanta has a large number of hospital facilities, his area has none, and that persons living in South Fulton's furthestmost sections are almost 30 miles removed from the Fulton and DeKalb sponsored Grady Hospital. Also, he says, heavy traffic must be bucked to reach that facility.

The Rev. Mr. Summer first became interested in the lack of hospital facilities in his area in the year 1949, shortly after he had moved to Hapeville from South Georgia. He says he carried his observation to the Hapeville City Council and was asked as a committee of one to look into the possibility of a Hill-Burton hospital for the area.

He found that first there must be a local unit to sponsor the hospital. So, he lined up the support of the officials of the communities of the area and the commissioners of both Fayette and Clayton Counties. Next, there came a request to the state for a survey of the hospital needs of that section.

The survey, under auspices of the Division of Hospital Services of the Georgia Department of Health, has been going on since April 9.

The study won't be finished until fall, but

Sen. George Delegate to Pact Signing

U. S. Sen. George (Dem., Ga.), is among delegates chosen to represent the United States Sept. 1, at a San Francisco conference at which this country, New Zealand and Australia will sign a mutual security treaty guarding against Pacific aggression, it was announced Wednesday night in Washington.

Developed to meet the fears of Australia and New Zealand of Japan, the pact provides that each country would "meet the common danger" in accordance with its own constitutional processes in the event of an armed attack in the Pacific area.

The pact will be signed in advance of the Japanese peace treaty conference which begins in San Francisco on Sept. 4. The two treaties will be followed by the signing of a defense pact between Japan and the United States.

In addition to Sen. George, the American delegation will include Secretary of State Acheson, Ambassador Dulles, Senators Connally (Dem., Texas) and Wiley (Rep., Wis.).

Parole Denied To Henry Mobley

Henry Mobley, given a life term for his part in the slaying of Wilson Turner in Coweta County, has been denied his plea for freedom by the State Parole Board. The Board recently denied a similar plea from Herring Sivell, also serving a life term.

John Wallace, wealthy Meriwether County farmer, was electrocuted for the slaying.

In addition to charges of speeding, no lights and violation of state motor vehicle law.

Battling Toper

Patrolmen W. D. Nash and L. H. Strickland had a prisoner Wednesday night whose insatiable thirst for whiskey led him to fight until he fell on his nose as the officers put him behind bars. The officers reported they found the man holding forth from the tile floor of a downtown liquor store where he lay guzzling wine he had taken from the counter after the operator refused to sell him liquor.

The patrolmen said the man had narrowly escaped death earlier in the night when witnesses reported he weaved across the street bumping into at least two moving automobiles and finally falling to safety.

He was booked for drunk and disorderly, disorderly conduct, disturbance, disorderly conduct, assault on an officer.

Truman Ties Socialism To Defense, Says Davis

Cong. James C. Davis Wednesday night charged that President Truman's Fair Deal is causing the armament program to "be made a vehicle in which socialistic schemes will be carried into operation."

"All efforts to engraft the so-called Fair Deal program of socialized medicine, the Brannan Plan, FEPC schemes and other radical and socialistic programs must be divorced entirely from our armament program," the Congressman declared.

Speaking before the 47th Annual Communication of the Fifth District Masonic Convention at the Harold Byrd Post of the American Legion in Avondale Estates, Cong. Davis said the Administration's efforts to incorporate "these schemes" in the armament program has brought the nation to a "perilous financial position."

ASKS QUESTION

"Facing these conditions, as we do," he said, "there is one standard which must be applied to every dollar of our government spending and that standard is: Is it necessary?"

The Congressman said that armament costs had increased by one-fifth since the beginning of the Korean War. He attributed the increase to "uncontrolled inflation."

"This cost the taxpayers seven billion dollars more than it would have cost if price and wage controls had been invoked promptly, as some of us tried to do."

Earlier Mr. Davis said the current OPS program "speaks for itself." He said more stringent means must be employed to halt "runaway inflation."

AID TO CHIANG

The Congressman said in an interview that aid to Chiang Kai-shek will not be wasted and "will benefit us as much as spending it at any other place."

Cong. Davis was introduced by

We are proud and happy to announce the winning of this coveted trophy in July for Betsy Ross bread.

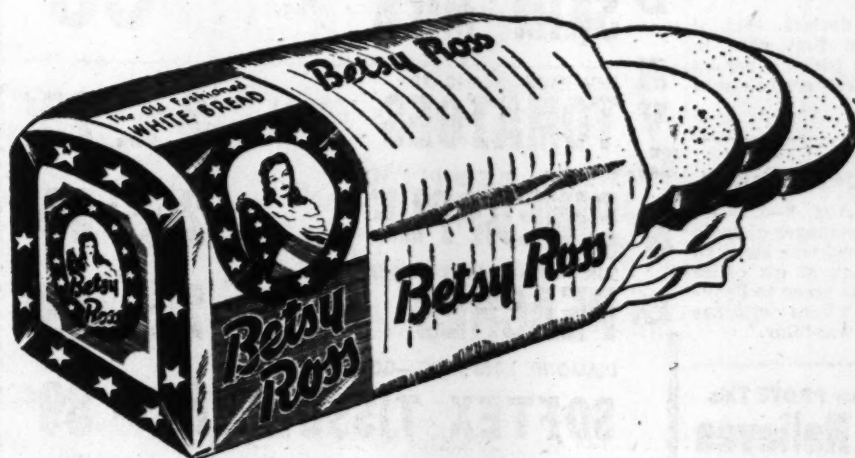

Through every step of the preparation and baking of our bread, we have always sought ever higher standards . . . to achieve as fine a loaf of bread as we can produce.

This announcement serves to acknowledge publicly our indebtedness to our own men here in the plant who have helped to bring this honor to us.

We particularly wish to express our heartiest congratulations to our Plant Superintendent who is responsible for production, for his splendid leadership that brings to our city this recognition of the success of our efforts.

THE W. E. LONG TROPHY

List of Names Is Promised By McCarthy

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—(AP)—Sen. McCarthy (Rep., Wis.) said Wednesday he intended to give the Senate the names of 29 past or present employees of the State Department whose loyalty has been questioned.

He told a news conference he would disclose the names in a speech on the Senate floor Thursday.

"Some very high officials" are on the list, McCarthy said. He reported most of the employees are under investigation on charges ranging from association with Communists to Communist affiliation.

URGES SUSPENSION
The Wisconsin Republican said he thinks all employees whose loyalty is in doubt should be suspended, on the reasoning that "if an employee is charged with embezzling from a bank, you don't let him still have access to the till."

When he suggested suspensions to Secretary of State Acheson and sought assurances that suspected employees were not being allowed to see secret papers McCarthy said, he got a letter "saying in effect, 'go to hell!'"

At the time, the Department accused McCarthy of "a political stratagem." It said some of the persons involved were not in the Department, while others had been cleared.

McCarthy said he believes 24 persons on his list are still with the State Department. He said his information is that two others have been suspended, two have resigned and one has been cleared. Among those involved, he said, are "a foreign affairs specialist, an editor-writer, a divisional assistant, an ambassador at large."

NONE FOUND UNFIT
The Senator added that he knew all those on the list would be cleared in the State Department's own loyalty procedures. "In four years the State Department has never found a single individual unfit for State Department service in its loyalty proceedings," he said.

Tuesday night on a television program (NBC's "Meet the Press") McCarthy offered to give out the names from his office Wednesday morning. "If any one of the three major press services will... give me assurance in writing... they will make those names a public without my having named them on the Senate floor."

The Associated Press, United Press and International News Service refused to give him such assurance.

'Frozen Woman' To Get New Legs

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—(AP)—Mrs. Dorothy Mae Stevens, last winter's "frozen woman," left Michael Reese Hospital Wednesday for the Chicago Welfare Department Convalescent Home on Chicago's South Side.

The 23-year-old Negro woman will be furnished with artificial legs at the home and counseled in rehabilitation and vocational training. Both her legs were amputated below the knee and the fingers of her right hand and several on her left hand were removed.

Mrs. Stevens was found lying frozen stiff in a South Side area way Feb. 8. The outside temperature was 11 below zero. Her body temperature was recorded at 64 degrees, about 34 degrees below normal.

At the time, doctors said it probably was the first case in medical history in which a person with such a low temperature survived.

Radio Manager Stricken

Heavy Seas Greet Destroyers From Korea

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 8.—(AP)—Five men were stricken with rain, wind and heavy seas Wednesday greeted four Atlantic Fleet destroyers returning from the Korean fighting, but failed to mar a tumultuous welcome. Aboard were 1,200 men, veterans of the Far East action. Rough winds slammed the J. P. Kennedy, Jr., division flagship, against the destroyer tender Yosemite's side, causing minor damage. The destroyers took part in shore bombardments.

Meanwhile, Howard Mashburn, chief registrar of Fulton County, reported that some 37,997 new voters have been registered from the three new wards.

Bankers Life Court Test Is Recessed

Fulton Superior Court Judge George P. Whitman Wednesday recessed temporarily a hearing involving the Bankers Life and Casualty Insurance Company of Chicago and State Insurance Commissioner Zack Cravey to permit attorneys to exchange briefs and reach agreement, if possible, on several points.

Judge Whitman asked attorneys for both the firm and Cravey to submit to him as soon as possible a memorandum listing all points still at issue in the case. At that time, he said, he will determine whether or not the suit will be tried before a jury.

Bankers Life is attempting to renew its Georgia license which it alleges was removed without legal authority.

During the heated three-day legal battle, Bankers Life questioned the constitutionality of the legal statute upon which Cravey based his refusal to renew the company's license.

Atty. Alex McLennan, representing the company, also argued that Cravey's June 18 request for "immediate" information and documents pertaining to the company's employee welfare plan was "unreasonable, arbitrary and capricious." McLennan said that the company president, John MacArthur, answered the request by pointing out that no such documents exist.

During the final day hearing, the firm's attorney asked that Judge Whitman issue an order which would allow the company a legal hearing before a special State Insurance Board. Bankers Life asserted that such a hearing was provided by law and that failure to renew their license without such a board hearing was also unconstitutional.

Deputy Atty. Gen. M. H. Blackshear said Wednesday the company's petition should fail on the grounds that no demands were made on Cravey before the suit was filed. A mandamus petition was filed against the Commission demanding that he be ordered to renew the company's license to do business in Georgia.

Atlanta's Federal Employee Colony Grows Again

HUB FOR U. S. AGENCIES

Federal Employees Total 21,000 Here

By CLARK HOWELL JR.

Federal civilian employees in metropolitan Atlanta now total approximately 21,000—an increase of some 8,000 since the outbreak of the Korean War, according to latest Civil Service estimates.

This is more than double the estimated 8,500 here on June 30, 1940, and somewhat less than the peak figure of 28,000 during World War II. During the depression years Federal employees numbered fewer than 7,000.

O. E. Myers, Civil Service head here, predicts the 21,000 figure will continue to rise if the nation continues to build its defenses.

He added that agencies' employment figures are static until the Congress passes an appropriations bill.

What Federal employees mean to the city's business houses can be gleaned from this comparison: The thriving South Georgia city of Valdosta has an estimated population of 20,000, slightly under Atlanta's number of Federal employees.

Valdosta's average per capita income is $1,075 a year and her annual retail sales are in excess of $20,000,000. Although figures on average pay for the city's Federal employees are not available, estimates range from $2,000 to $3,000. And one local merchant was moved to say of the city's Federal payroll: "It makes the cash register sing."

Atlanta gets her share of Federal employees because she is the regional head of District No. 5, one of 13 regions in the nation. This district is comprised of Georgia, Florida, South Carolina, Tennessee, Alabama and Mississippi. It employs more than 200,000 Federal workers of whom approximately 10 per cent are centered in Atlanta, Commerce department records show.

There were 44,540 Federal employees in Georgia in 1950, according to the latest official census report. Several thousands have been added since then.

Federal workers in the nation more than doubled from 1940 to 1950, increasing from 1,003,000 to 2,117,000. This figure excludes armed services. Monthly Federal payrolls jumped from $177,000,000 for the month of October, 1940, to $613,400,000 for October, 1950. Figures on Federal payrolls in Georgia were not available. Neither were figures on the number of agencies in the Atlanta area available from Government sources. A check of Atlanta telephone directories from 1931 up to and including the present issue, however, showed that in 1931 there were 20 agencies located here. Today, there are 49 principal agencies in Atlanta.

Depression depths of 1933 saw the number of Federal agencies shrink to 13, but by 1936 there were 19 agencies here. By 1939 Atlanta's Federal agency list had grown to 31, and by 1941 to 51. The peak was reached in 1944 when 58 agencies located here.

GENE SARAZEN'S FAMOUS "DOUBLE EAGLE"

WHEN THE chips are down, Gene Sarazen is one of the coolest golfers who ever swung a club. He proved it at the Masters Tournament in 1935.

THREE STROKES DOWN with only four holes to go in the final round, Gene smashed out a sizzling 250-yard drive on the 485-yard, par-5, 15th hole. Then, on his second shot, he made golfing history. The ball whizzed straight for the pin, landed on the green and rolled into the cup... for a 235-yard "double eagle" that tied up the tournament! The next day, in the play-off, Gene won the championship!

Baseball Guys and Dolls

The Crackers, whose flag-waving has been limited this season, joined the Army en masse at noon Wednesday. But the enlistment was of short duration.

After lunch, they were given their discharges—honorable, in spite of the recent trend established at West Point—and returned to their civilian routine at Ponce de Leon Park. It wasn't that the military is turning up its nose at sixth-place recruits this season. It's simply that Granny Phillips' lease ran out at 2 p. m.

Most every good baseball town has a Granny Phillips. She's a sort of sweetish doll with grey hair, rimless spectacles and a family history without any foundation for such a baseball love as hers.

"Oh, now, wait a minute," said Granny. (Her real name is Etta.) "Had an uncle who was a pitcher for our town team up to Chatsworth. That's where I come from. You know Chatsworth. Up in the hills of North Georgia. I'm just a mountain gal."

"You know how these little towns used to play each other of a Saturday afternoon. Well, they'd make the trip by horse and wagon. They'd load the wagon bed with straw and some of the players would take their girls along to cheer for them. Well, my uncle was Chatsworth's pitcher, and a pretty good one. Anyway, that's where I get my baseball."

"I been a close friend to the Crackers since Paul Richards was managing. I love them White Sox just because of him. I been inviting the team out here (to the Atlanta General Depot) for a day each year since Kiki Cuyler was managing. I just love these boys, whether they're in first place or sixth."

Granny swings a big stick at the Depot largely through her enthusiasm for what she undertakes. She's in charge of the base janitorial service, but as she sees it:

"I run this place out here, and I run the Crackers, too, and when the C. O. was away and Dixie Walker was out, I had my hands full. I'm sure glad they're both back."

All in the Point of View

The woman's place in baseball has never yet quite been firmly determined. There is the wife, of course, who belongs in the life of the player who's married to her. But without right of actual participation, the kitchen stove jockeys have done well at projecting themselves on the baseball screen. Some have been owners; some have been directors; some have been managers, yet; and some have specialized in singing the national anthem on opening days.

Then, of course, there's the doll who goes to the ball park knowing practically nothing about what she's there for. And there's the one who knows the game, but who subscribes to the thought and time and patience that goes into the vast production on the greensward before her.

As the frau who sat in Section E as Buddy Hicks batted in four runs for Mobile Tuesday night.

"Now that's just like Dixie Walker!" she hollered. "He's lost more games that way this year than any other manager, just by plain stupidity!"

Only a brave man, but also a fool, would have dared tell her that Dixie Walker doesn't play shortstop, and that Hicks is no puppet whose strings are being pulled from the dugout. Far as the female fan was concerned, Walker installed Hicks at shortstop and the boots belonged to Dixie.

The Texas House of Hollmig

Long Stanley Hollmig, a Hondo, Texas, householder a good portion of the year, became married to Mary Anne House on Nov. 21, 1948. At the time of wedding, Miss House was completely devoid of baseball knowledge, or know-how, if you prefer the Trumanism. She professed no acquaintance at all with the hit-and-run, or the second-base pickoff, or how to file one's spikes.

In something less than three seasons at the side of her man, however, Mrs. Hollmig has assumed new authority around her table. "I go home after a game," said the Hollmig man of the house, "and she's waiting to tell me what I did wrong. She knows how we could have won, or if we did, how we could have scored more runs. Without any trouble at all, she's become a first-rate baseball authority. I don't mind, though. She's got our best interest at heart."

It was the quip-equipped Hollmig, a perfectly normal Texan in every sense of the adjective, who could have created a military crisis at the Ordnance Depot luncheon. A riot was surely averted only because Col. Clyde C. Massey, the commanding officer who came to say his hellos at lunch, had his back turned.

First, we set the scene. Hollmig is a Texas A&M man, abandoned the Cadets' football team after two seasons for a $25,000 bonus invitation from the Phils. He still schools there in the off-season. Colonel Massey spoke briefly of West Point, in grief-stricken tones, as he passed the Hollmig table and moved deeper into the dining room.

"West Point," said Hondo Stan. "That's where they send you if you can't make it at Texas A&M."

Like I said, a normal Texan, real normal.

THE LITTLE GUY

Death of Joe Jordan Saddens Georgia Men

The death Tuesday night of little Joe Jordan brought sorrow and memories to University of Georgia coaches and Bulldog basketball fans. Jordan, Georgia basketball star for four seasons, died of cancer at his father's farm near Lyons, Ind. He was 28.

Charlie Martin, former Georgia greatest performance was in the 1950 SEC tourney. Joe was playing with a broken toe and in the closing seconds, he scored with a lay-up which gave us a 52-51 overtime win over Alabama and put us in the finals.

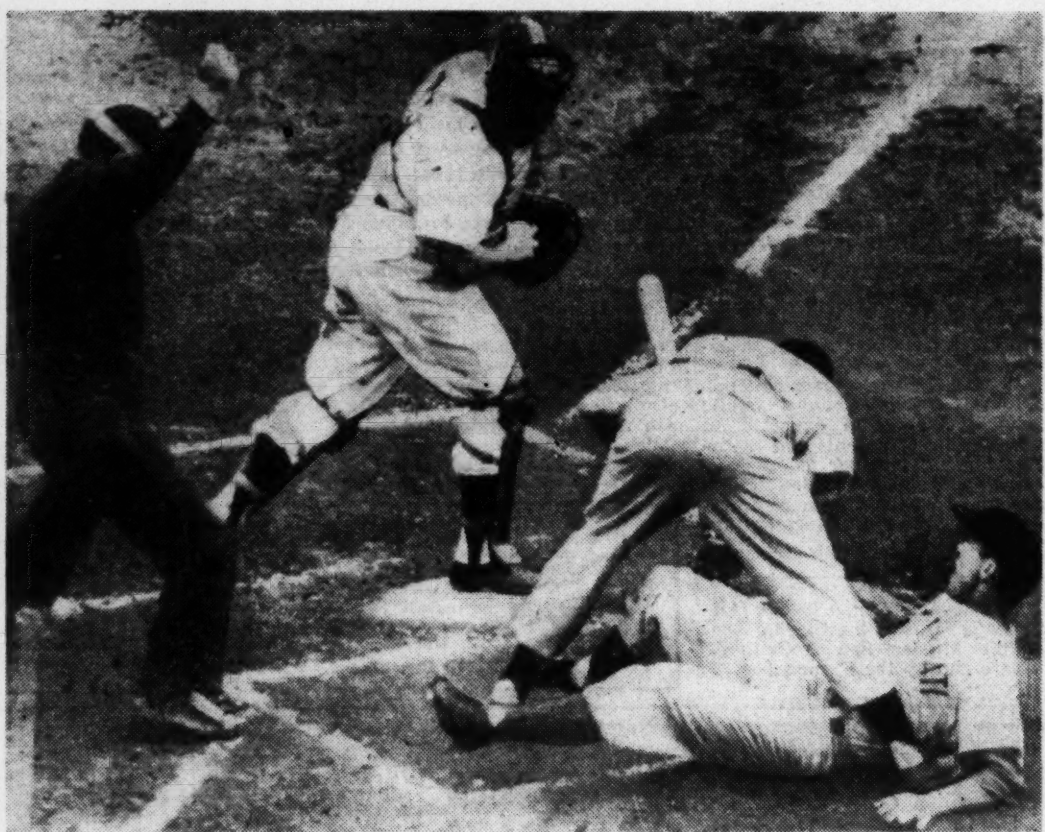

Athletic Publicity Director Dan Magill, Jr., "People have called me to express condolences all day. Georgia never had a more popular athlete."

Qualifying At Radium

ALBANY, Aug. 8—Battle for post positions in the 19th annual Radium Country Club Invitation golf tournament will be staged over the par 72 layout here Thursday when a field of approximately 150 players from Georgia, Florida, Alabama and South Carolina tee off in 18 holes of qualifying.

Aside from the qualifying scramble, several professionals will be on hand with their amateur partners seeking a portion of the $300 prize money awaiting winners of the Pro-Amateur event.

Paul Lavin, Adams Park, and Bobby Stowe, Meadowbrook Country Club, will be among the pros participating in the pro-am. Pierce Miller and Chub Kile, of Meadowbrook, will head Atlanta's amateur contingent.

Waitkus' Hit Downs Braves, 3-2

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 8.—(P)—Eddie Waitkus tripled off Willard Marshall's glove with two on and two out and the Philadelphia Phils one run behind in the eighth Wednesday night to give the Phils a 3-2 triumph over the Boston Braves.

Ralph Caballero doubled with one out and Bill Nicholson, pinch-hitting for Ken Johnson, walked. Waitkus then smashed a drive to right that Marshall dropped after a long run. Umpire Lou Jorda banished both Roy Hartsfield, of the Braves, and Dick Sisler, of the Phils, for protesting too vigorously on decisions.

Musial Gets 25th as Bucs Flip Cards

ST. Feller, Ex-Yank Porterfield Hurl Cleveland Into American Lead

Tribe Ace First With 18; Castoff Wins for Senators

Bob Feller and ex-Yankee Bob Porterfield combined Wednesday to push Cleveland into first place in the American League and drop the Yankees to second. Feller became the majors' first 18-game winner as the Tribe stopped the St. Louis Browns, 2-1. Porterfield gave the Senators a 4-1 triumph over the Bronx Bombers.

The combination put the Indians out front with 66 wins and 39 losses for a .629 percentage. New York's record is 65 and 39 for .625.

It was the first time since May 2 that Cleveland had reached the top spot. They came within a few percentage points July 22 just before leaving on their last Eastern trip. New York had led the lead since July 25.

A pop double by Larry Doby in the fourth inning scored both Indians runs. The Tribe was held to five hits by southpaw Tommy Byrne, but Byrne walked nine batters.

Feller did not issue a single walk, duplicating Mike Garcia's pass-free game against the Browns Tuesday night.

Brunswick Liquor Dealer's License Is Suspended

By M. L. St. JOHN

For nearly 20 years officials of Brunswick and Glynn County have been winking at violation of the liquor laws, a Brunswick liquor distributor told State Revenue Commissioner Charles D. Redwine Wednesday.

So, Distributor Max Rosier said he didn't think he was doing such a bad thing to co-operate with the Country Club, operated with the aid of the city and county officials, to sell the club liquor even if it didn't possess a State license. He was charged with selling six cases of liquor to an unlicensed person, Tommy Wilson, the golf pro, Wilson admitted buying the liquor. State agents said Rosier told Redwine he had sold this amount and more, too. He knew it was in violation of the State law, but in view of the local attitude he didn't think it mattered too much.

The Revenue Commissioner suspended Rosier's license for 15 days and offered to take a bond settlement totaling $1,500. He said he was lenient because this was Rosier's first offense.

Milk Program

The Georgia Milk Control Board and the University of Georgia Dairy School will join hands in a research program to find ways of increasing milk production.

Gov. Talmadge Wednesday approved transfer of $35,000 by the Milk Control Board to equip a research laboratory for the school. State Milk Control Director Charles Duncan said other States are doing research to increase milk production. He said Georgia dairymen have paid $82,000 more in fees to the State than the Board has spent in operation during its existence.

Report Denied

Letch Foster soon will be on his way back to a Georgia prison. The State Department of Corrections will send agents to Los Angeles, Calif., Thursday for Foster.

The fugitive attracted national attention several months ago when he wrote an article for a pulp magazine declaring he would be killed if Georgia prison officials got their hands on him again. He alleged that he had been cruelly treated before his escape.

Georgia officials branded his charges false; they said he had escaped on numerous occasions and had made trouble at three different camps with prisoners as well as guards; and demanded that the magazine correct its article. Gov. Talmadge invited the magazine to inspect any prison camp in Georgia, with or without notice, and write its findings.

Gov. Talmadge will observe his 38th birthday with a busy day Thursday. He will be at work during the morning at his office. Then he will fly to Savannah for a speech to the Vocational Rehabilitation Conference Thursday night. Friday he will be at Camp Stewart for "Governor's Day" at the camp.

Cuba, Hilary C. Gardner, Ralph B. Garrett, Jr., Isaac N. Habib, Charles Ray Jones, Clifton R. Jones, Leon M. Melvin, Charles A. Nickerson, Jr., James L. Respass, Jr., Preston Allen Sewell, Herbert W. Aid to Handicapped

Gov. Talmadge has employed more physically-handicapped persons than any other Georgia Governor, and has helped these people show that the physically-handicapped can be an asset to the taxpayers instead of a liability. This tribute was given the Governor, along with a plaque of commendation, Wednesday by Louis Thornton, president of the Georgia Chapter of the American Federation of Physically Handicapped. Thornton said that 200 physically handicapped persons now are employed by the state.

LOS ANGELES MOTHER OF SEVEN TELLS HOW HADACOL HELPED HER

HADACOL Relieves Nagging Aches and Pains When Due to Deficiencies of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron

Mrs. Lula Nelson, 1702 E. 63rd St., Los Angeles, Calif., is a young mother of seven children. The youngest child is two years old and the oldest is 11. Experience has taught Mrs. Nelson how to safeguard the well-being of her youngsters and her experience with today's great family formula, HADACOL, has also taught her something valuable for Mrs. Nelson had been having nagging aches and pains, didn't rest well and felt run-down. She heard how HADACOL was helping other folks who were suffering from a deficiency of Vitamins B1, B2, Iron and Niacin and began taking it. HADACOL helped her so much that now all the Nelson children are taking their HADACOL regularly, too.

Here is what Mrs. Nelson says about HADACOL: "I was run-down, couldn't sleep at night, had nagging aches and pains and with seven children to care for I couldn't get my work done. After three bottles of HADACOL I felt so much better I could do more work than ever before. I've been taking HADACOL ever since and feel so good. I now give it to my children and it has helped them, too."

Give HADACOL a Chance
Yes, now Mrs. Nelson is able to get her work done and enjoy life once again.

HADACOL makes it possible to actually relieve the REAL CAUSE of those nagging aches and pains when due to the lack of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron in the system.

AND LISTEN TO THIS! Continued use of this great HADACOL not only gives continuous complete relief but helps keep such painful distress from returning when caused by such deficiencies. Now that's the kind of product you have been waiting for. That's the kind you should buy and start taking at once.

And HADACOL's wonderful Vitamins and Minerals come in special pleasant liquid form so they are quickly absorbed and assimilated in the blood, ready to go to work at once.

Richard, Murlean and Mrs. Nelson

HADACOL Is So Effective
Because HADACOL helps build up the hemoglobin content of your blood (when iron is needed) to carry these precious Vitamins and Minerals to every part of your body.

You may have tried other Vitamin preparations or other Vitamin and Mineral preparations, so we make you this offer. Try a bottle of HADACOL today if you need Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin, and Iron. You be the judge. If you do not believe that HADACOL is the best Vitamin and Mineral preparation you have ever taken, we will gladly send you back your money. That's our positive money-back guarantee. You take no chances.

So be fair to yourself. Don't go through life suffering from nagging aches and pains when they are caused by lack of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron, when relief may be as close at hand as your nearest drug store.

Cremation of Woman Due To Cigarette, Police Think

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Aug. 8.—(AP)—Police Chief J. R. Reichart said Wednesday Mrs. Mary Hardy Reeser, "cremation mystery" victim, probably set fire to herself with a cigarette while semi-conscious from sedatives.

Once the body became ignited, "almost complete destruction occurred from burning of its own fatty tissues," Chief Reichart said in a long-awaited report on the mystery.

Reichart and Detective Chief Cass Burgess prepared the report after an examination at the FBI laboratory at Washington showed no traces of any fluid or chemical used to start or accelerate burning.

Reichart said he was not closing the case completely, but "the facts have been checked from every angle . . . and we must consider this as an accident until such time as we can prove otherwise."

The body of Mrs. Reeser, a 67-year-old widow, was found in her small apartment on July 2 by the apartment owner. Smelling smoke, the apartment owner called firemen.

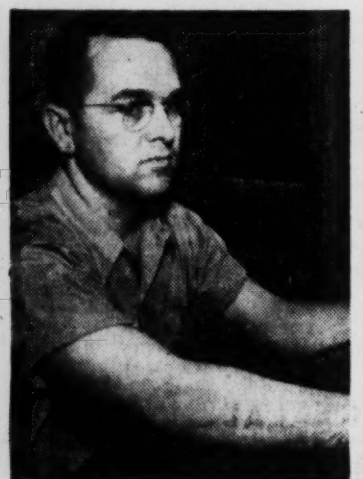

All that was left of the body was a skull shriveled to the size of a fist, a section of backbone and parts of the feet. The chair in which Mrs. Reeser had been sitting was consumed to the springs. An end table by it had been destroyed.

The great mystery was why nothing else in the room was burned—scarcely smokestained—by heat intense enough to consume the body.

Reichart said that instances of bodies being consumed by burning of their own fat and other substances are on record, although not numerous.

Reichart said the body probably just burned out without setting other parts of the room on fire because the "heat went straight up and the hot air never came in contact with other furnishings. This was likely to be true if the fire smoldered, as apparently it did here, rather than burn freely."

The report by Reichart and Burgess offered this explanation: "At 8 o'clock the night before, Mrs. Reeser told her son, Dr. Richard Reeser, that she had taken two sedatives and planned to take two more. He left her smoking a cigarette."

Insane Escapee Hunted in Fulton

County officers with bloodhounds late Wednesday night joined military police in a search for a 25-year-old insane Negro who escaped from an army ambulance near the municipal airport.

Hapeville officers said the Negro, identified as Joe L. Ried, was en route from the Ft. McPherson station hospital to a permanent institution. Military authorities said his case had been diagnosed as a dangerous type of insanity.

After the escape, officers said Ried attempted to force his way into a Negro home near Hapeville. He said the Negro was believed to be surrounded at midnight in a wooded area along Highway 85 south of the airport.

Transit Union Helm Is Given J. P. Thomas

J. P. Thomas, trolley and bus operator for the past 29 years, Wednesday was appointed President of the local AFL transit union by W. E. Whitt, member of the international AFL executive board, who stoutly insisted there was "no behind-the-scenes dissension" among union leaders.

A tall, husky, jovial man, Thomas said his appointment came as "a complete surprise."

"I've been driving an East Point trolley for nearly 10 years," he said. "I'm just a bus driver."

Thomas will take the job which was held by Jesse Walton until the latter's resignation was announced Aug. 1. Thomas will serve until the local union holds an election, Whitt said.

Whitt pointed out the approximately 1,400 members of the union could elect a president at their next regular meeting Sept. 4 or they could wait for the general election in December.

Thomas refused to say whether he would be a candidate then. S. G. Gurley, vice president of the local union, who automatically took over when Walton resigned, told union leaders he "didn't want to serve as president," Whitt said.

Whitt denied the transit union shakeup had any significance. He said Walton "just resigned voluntarily . . . nobody asked him to."

Whitt said he was "certain Thomas will do his level best to perform the duties of the President of the union."

He said also there was no discussion at Wednesday's board meeting of Atlanta's ordinance requiring the fingerprinting of trolley operators. He added: "Of course, we would like to have it repealed."

ATLANTA POLICE DEPARTMENT

138 VIOLATIONS COUNTED Police Begin Crackdown On Atlanta Jaywalkers

By ANNE GOWEN

A preoccupied businessman threaded his way through mid-block city traffic and walked into the arms of a waiting policeman. The policeman pushed a slip of pink paper between the man and his thoughts.

"Wh-wh-have I done?" the man stammered.

The pink paper was explanation enough. It was one of the first warning tickets issued to jaywalkers by city police Wednesday.

During the noon rush hour Wednesday 138 persons were seen to trust their lives to the brakes and vision of downtown drivers by making illegal crossings. Most of these were not given the warning tickets because all policemen had not yet received them to distribute, a sergeant explained. "But the whole force will have warning," a policeman remarked after giving a ticket to a reporter who tried an unlawful crossing. Jaywalkers are usually persons in a hurry who violate the city pedestrian ordinance to "save a little time," he said.

Motorists seem even more inclined to condemn jaywalkers than are policemen. "They ought to fine each one a dollar," one driver said. "But if they caught them all, the cops wouldn't have time for anything else."

Lt. Payne Welcomed Home; Atlantans Plan To Attend Horse Show

By ANNIE LOU HARDY

The welcome mat was out for Lt. Charles Payne, U. S. Army, who arrived Sunday from Korea to visit his mother, Mrs. Charles Payne, at the Georgian Terrace. Lt. Payne went to the Orient five years ago, and during the time he was stationed at Sapporo, Japan, home of the International Ski Lodge, his mother kept house for him. She returned to the States last October when war came close to Sapporo which is near the Korean border.

Since the arrival of the famed Tenth Corps in Korea, Lt. Payne has been on Gen. Ed Almond's staff. After a 90-day leave here, he will go to Fort Benning for a year, and then to Germany for station. He is the son of the late Col. Charles Payne, who was detailed at GMA and also at Ft. McPherson during his Army career.

Since Mrs. Payne's return to Atlanta, her beautiful and unusual costumes have been the envy of her friends. The dresses were made entirely by hand by her Japanese "girl" without benefit of pattern or sewing machine.

"I just showed her pictures," said Mrs. Payne, "and she sat down on the floor and went to work." Especially lovely is a white georgette smocked in different colors of thread around the neck, sleeves and neckline. "Girlsang" also knitted her a complete ski outfit, with cap and mittens.

MISS MARION SMITH left Tuesday to visit her aunt, Miss Dorothy Smith, in Macon.

THE OWENSBORO HORSE SHOW will take Mrs. William J. Weinman, Mrs. Weinman Gardner, and Miss Cary Latimer to Kentucky Monday. Miss Latimer will be the guest for ten days of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Duncan in Owensboro. She will ride the Duncan horses in the show. Making the trip by motor, Mrs. Weinman and her daughter, Mrs. Gardner, will return to Atlanta.

MISS DOROTHY ROSSITER left Wednesday by plane for Miami where she is visiting Miss Joan Sinclair who is appearing in the Broadway hit, "Season in the Sun," with Jeffrey Lynn now at Miami Beach. Miss Rossiter and Miss Sinclair graduated in the same class from the American Academy of Dramatic Arts in New York.

PICTURESQUE NASSAU in the Bahamas is just a memory for Misses Frances Dominey and Miss Edith Bell who spent their vacation on the island, where they were guests at the Royal Victoria Hotel. Miss Dominey is a teacher in the Samuel Inman High School, and Miss Bell is employed in the department of Delta Air Lines.

A WONDERFUL HOLIDAY is in store for Patricia and Harry Ballance Jr., who left with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry G. Ballance, Monday for Los Angeles. While there they will visit the 20th Century-Fox Film Studios, with which their father is connected. The last of this week the family will leave by plane for Honolulu where they will vacation for two weeks, returning by way of San Francisco.

VACATIONS—Miss Mary Kingsbery left Monday for a two-week stay at Montreat, N. C. . . Mrs. John Boykin and Mrs. Samuel E. McConnell are at Tremont Inn, Franklin, N. C. for a month. . . Mrs. and Mr. Hughes Spaulding are guests at the Greenbriar, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. . . Dr. and Mrs. Herman L. Turner have returned from a vacation in South America. On their return they visited Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bryant in Aliceville, Ala. and Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Williams in Birmingham.

Only Wallflowers Need Pity

MILLEDGEVILLE, Aug. 8—It's been years since we've been to a dance and the idea of going to one at the State Hospital for the Insane in the middle of a hot August afternoon didn't appeal to us. Milledgeville is an old and romantic-looking town and we've seen the hospital grounds in the moonlight with the fragrance of magnolias heavy on the air. Dancing would seem appropriate to such atmosphere but from 2 to 4 p. m., when the temperature is at least 100 degrees, when the men's shirts are plastered to their perspiring bodies and the women's lips wear little moustaches of moisture well, we didn't think we'd like it—but it was wonderful.

The auditorium filled up early and in the absence of the hillbilly orchestra which normally adds to the jollity of the dance, a juke box and a loudspeaker combined to make the hospital grounds melodic with Vaughn Monroe's rendition of the "Tennessee Waltz." The floor was crowded and we found a place on the sidelines and watched.

At a glance it was heart-breaking. A little old man with a white goatee pushed an elderly woman through the stately measures of the waltz. On his head he wore a crown contrived out of a piece of newspaper and he was dressed in a knee-length Boy Scout suit with long socks and sneakers. But he danced with the dignity of a State Department diplomat pushing a borderline United Nations dower around the floor. Next to him a limber lad in khaki jitterbugged simultaneously with three elderly women and when one of them forgot him and jitterbugged off the floor and into the lobby nobody paid any attention.

Watching them we felt a sweep of compassion for the fantastic picture some of them presented. Walled cities, we thought, just like some authentic. All of them were walled cities—cut off from one another, unable to reach out and communicate with the world around them and yet going through the grotesque business of the waltz.

We might have left but a small black-eyed man with the stump of a pipe sticking out of his face pulled at our sleeve shyly.

"Want to give it a whirl?" he asked. We looked at him uncertainly. We didn't know whether we were supposed to participate but it seemed infinitely worse to refuse. So we thanked him politely and marched out on the floor. He was, as they say around the hospital, "a born mountain dancer," accustomed to the swift sliding movement of the Saturday night square dance. We danced at arms length and we had to step lively. When the music stopped he graciously turned us over to a friend and from then on we danced madly.

"Begin the Beguine," "My Heart Cries for You," "On Top of Old Smoky"—it mattered not, we jigged and stomped furiously and had the time of our life.

Once we glanced at an aged woman in a rose-spattered pinafore with a pink ribbon in her hair and pink socks on her feet. She dipped and bowed and pirouetted all by herself and even when the music stopped she kept dancing.

We spoke to her and she paused with her skirts flaring, her toe pointed gracefully.

"You've danced every dance, haven't you?" we asked.

"Every one," she said proudly. And then over her shoulder, "You're doing all right for a visitor."

Then we recognized what the hospital therapists have long accepted. All of us are walled cities. The mentally ill have perhaps higher and deeper walls than some of us. But there's nothing like a brisk canter on the dance floor. Nothing like gaiety and movement and the companionship of other people to help you vault that wall. From then on, the only people we felt sorry for were the wallflowers.

BACHELORS AGREE—FREEDOM COUNTS!

Bachelors Tell Why They Aren't Married

By YOLANDE GWIN

There's a man shortage—but there are still a large number of bachelors-at-large. But why, ask the gals, do men prefer bachelorhood to matrimony?

Freedom seems to be uppermost in the thoughts of most of them around town. One said, "If you give too many opinions as to why you like being a bachelor and some of the reasons why you want to stay one, then the girls, with that way of theirs will start trying to break down your resistance. It never fails, especially with leap-year getting closer and closer."

Take the Mayor of Hapeville, His Honor R. T. Reeves. He says, "Well, the law is a jealous mistress and you know how a wife would think of that. The real old men who get set in their ways are the bachelors who will remain that way, but not me! I don't have any intentions of remaining a bachelor always, but it takes time to find the right girl who will be the right wife!" Two business associates,

George Oliver and Joe Burch, who seem to get along fine in their roles of bachelorhood were nevertheless at cross purposes when it came to their opinions on their status.

"I suppose I like my freedom too much," said Oliver. "When I was in the army I got in the habit of going from one place to the other without any wife ties. I suppose I'm just restless and feel freer when I know I'm not tied down."

Burch on the other hand frankly admitted that he "never found the right one." He says: "Of course I enjoy my freedom, but I think I'd be willing to give up a little, or rather, share some of it with the right girl!"

A business executive—a bachelor—admits his status, not because he is happy about it, but because, as he says, "Marriage is very fine and very sacred and it should be considered on a high plane. It's important to pick the right person with whom you can share life and you can't do it in a hurry."

Danny Boggs was right there with his answers on his bachelorhood, and very definite, too. "Yes, it's fun being a bachelor. If I see a girl I want to date—I can call her. If I were married I'd have to sneak out and then I'd have my conscience plus my wife to account for. I don't have to report to anyone; I don't have to be dragged to a movie at night if I don't want to go and I've got my freedom. Then too, I can have my own way."

Frank Wilson, driver for a large truck company, says: "If you are not married, you can do as you please and don't have to check in—except to your boss. Oh, yes, I've thought about marriage, but not too seriously. I met a girl once I thought would be a good wife—but somebody beat me to her!"

Bachelors here, representing all professions, were, for the most part, rather reluctant about admitting their preference of single blessedness. As one very curtly retorted: "Every man has his personal and private reason why he hasn't married and I don't think it's for publication!"

Berets Ahead In Milinery For Autumn

Softly rippled berets, many worn level on the brow, some tilted well over the forehead to shadow the eyes, are highlighted in Fall milinery.

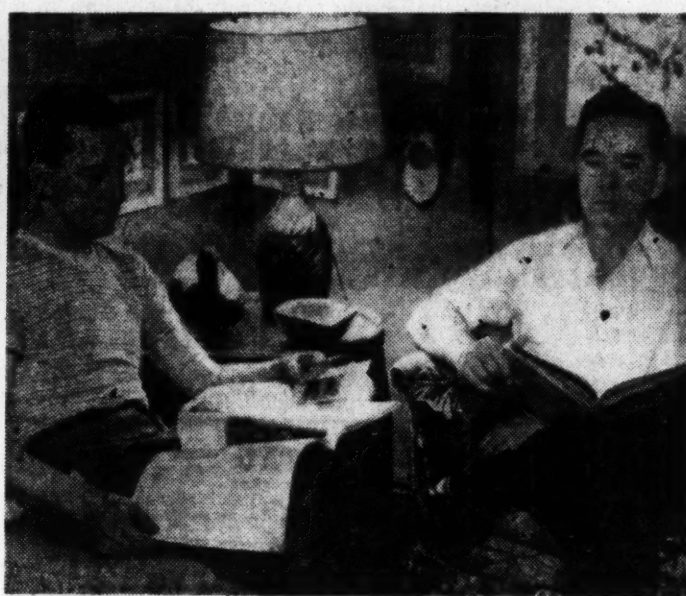

Some are inspired by the romantic silhouettes worn by the ladies in Toulouse-Lautrec paintings.

Another important "look" in Fall hats is the squared, pagoda-like silhouettes, these featuring deep, turned-down mushroom brims and very shallow crowns. Best expression of this shape is seen in a pale ginger velour with flat front black ribbon bow. Brim is almost level with the eyebrows. New-looking in forward tilted, level silhouettes is the wide pleating of the brim almost in lampshade fashion. This squared-off treatment also is developed in beret-like shapes, the squared portion centered at front exposing some of the front hairline. These are virtually all brims, the pleated brim starting way back at center of the flat crown.

Peaks and points are emphasized often in some of the more tailored hats. One deep brimmed shape brings a sharp point down to touch the center forehead, just level with the eyebrows, while other level silhouettes are peaked up in front in youthful manner.

There is a great deal of pink ginger with black in velours, but high colors such as bright red and turquoise are highlighted in draped and button-treated velvets. Soft maline veils give feminine feeling to many of the smaller models, and there is new interest in a billowy veil applied at either side with tiny ostrich curls.

A new ironing table with wheels, plus a swivel foot that adjusts to uneven floors is designed to cut down laundry day blues. The ironing board is adjustable at the touch of a finger to nine different positions, is burn-proof and can be wheeled easily to its storage place.

NO FEMININE FRILLS HERE!

BOOKS—NO BRIDE
Mayor R. T. Reeves

Another one said that he was a bachelor because the girls made him one.

"I'd like to marry, but the girls these days just aren't what they should be and I don't want any of them for a wife!"

A rather curious state of affairs may pique and intrigue. While constructive programs are in dire need of influential aid, capital and cooperation, these may be backward about coming forward unless approached with unusual suavity and discretion. Some sort of compromise or secret agreement might insure results where forthright tactics fail. Perhaps a little "soft soap" might grease the skids.

Those whose birthday it is may find that some show of "agreeing with thine adversary quickly" might prove to be a key to locked doors or withheld support which is vital to putting over constructive programs! A discreet show of feeling or emotional appeal might prove more effective than cold logic or intellectual analysis. Intuition, inspiration, have force.

A child born on this day may find that strong but strange inner leads or urges may break down stubborn barriers to its success and prestige.

Steam Takes Dent From Furniture

It's easy to remove dents and white marks from woodwork and furniture.

To remove dents, just dampen a blotter or several thicknesses of cloth and lay it over the dented area. When you hold a hot iron over the damp pad steam will swell the damaged wood fibers. Putting the iron directly on the pad will make a white mark on the wood finish, so keep a little distance between pad and iron.

Holding a steam iron close to a dry cloth over the dent will remove it, but more slowly.

Since wood finishes vary, you may have to try several methods for removing white marks, she continues. First try rubbing the spot gently with a cloth dampened in water and a very small amount of household ammonia. If that doesn't remove the spot, rub it with equal parts of raw linseed oil, turpentine and vinegar. Or try a half-and-half solution of water and oil of wintergreen. If that doesn't do the trick, use oil of wintergreen full strength—but rub very lightly.

After you remove dents and white marks, oil the wood with a mixture of one part turpentine to two parts raw linseed oil. Rub it into the surface of the wood and wipe off excess before re-waxing the finish.

Bow Ties---A Kingly Touch

By SCARLETT BLANTON

What started as a seventeenth-century king's whim has developed into one of the most popular trends of modern neckwear.

We speak, of course, of bow ties.

Louis XIV of France tied colored ribbons about his royal neck some 300 years ago, and thereby started a fad that has taken firm hold on the gents of the twentieth century.

Bow ties first held forth as strictly a collegiate fashion, but today are accepted by men who are young in fancy as well as in fact. All ages and types are champions of the cause and records show that bow tie sales have reached an all-time high this year.

Incidentally, it's an old legend that all successful newspapermen wear bow ties.

We wondered whether the mark of success came, primarily, because the gentleman mastered the art of tying these elusive neckpieces. With this in mind, we approached some of The Constitution bow tie fanatics.

Leo Aikman says it took him four years to learn to tie one (anything else he learned in college was extracurricular, he says) and he ties them strictly by the "feel system." Cliff Baldowski, cartoonist, on the other hand, is a "mirror man" and admits he has to make a couple of trial runs before it looks just right.

The newest shape among bows is a one-inch wide tie

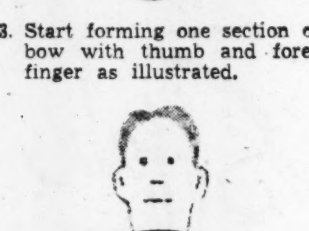

YOUR LEFT IN MIRROR YOUR RIGHT IN MIRROR

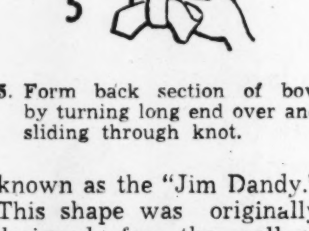

1. Arrange tie so that the end in your left hand is one and a half inches below other end. Place longer end over shorter end.

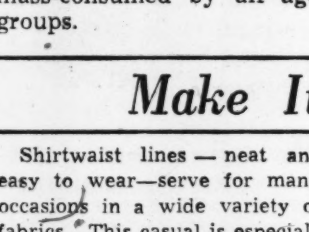

2. Put longer end through the loop.

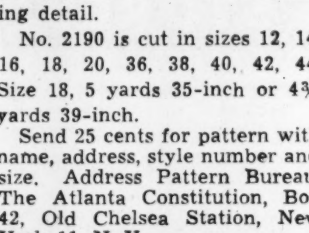

3. Start forming one section of bow with thumb and forefinger as illustrated.

4. Hold this front bow segment between thumb and forefinger of your left hand. Drape long end over it.

5. Form back section of bow by turning long end over and sliding through knot.

6. Finish by evening ends and tightening knot.

known as the "Jim Dandy." This shape was originally designed for the college market, but now is being mass-consumed by all age groups.

Straight edge bows have long been traditional and suit the gentleman with a long, narrow face. Big time favorite this year, though, is the butterfly bow shape.

Husbands May Be Asked To Pull Ties

PARIS, Aug. 8.—(AP)—Warning to husbands: You are in danger of being pressed into service to lace up your wives' evening dresses, just like grandpa had to do.

Pierre Balmain showed tight strapless evening tops with corset lacing up the back which even a contortionist couldn't get done up without help. There are no whalebones, though. Instead they are stiffly "stitched 10,000 times," said Balmain, who presumably counted the stitches.

In addition to dictating fashions, Balmain this time murmured a word about comportment. It's "the haughty look" he advocates, and he precariously balanced little hats and rigged stiff stand-up collars to make it really necessary to keep your nose in the air.

Immense gathered skirts were shown for evening wear. Cellophane tassels spangle tulle skirts and there is a novel trimming which resembles paper.

Christmas bells partly unfolded. A mink stole is lined with multicolored Autumn leaves. Tweed coats have leather or knitted linings. A pair of leopard skin pants were shown with leopard shoes and low necked, sequin trimmed evening sweater. Mink is lined with lace.

There's an old-fashioned air about Balmain's double hand span waists and swag draped skirts. He shows big cigar shaped muffs, velvet bow ties on halter topped evening dresses and, most practical note of all, a theater hat in two parts. When the view blocking hat is removed, a tight net remains to cover the hair.

JESSIE'S Notebook

by JESSIE DE BOTH

How-To-Do's From My Test Kitchen: For well-flavored meat loaf, moisten cubed bread in tomato juice, mix lightly with meat. Top off puddings with crumbled cookies, macaroons or cake crumbs.

MAKE A SIMPLE SALAD
of tender hearts of Boston lettuce with the crisp leaves of escarole, romaine or chicory and thinly sliced cucumber.
Then give it bang! Add Colman's Dry Mustard to the dressing. No salad stays commonplace when dressed with the extra-delicious, spicy tang of Colman's.
Colman's steps up even a hurry-up-supper salad into a tasty dish. No wonder it's the famous dry mustard—and used by fine cooks everywhere. Even a new cook who discovers Colman's Mustard can feel confident on the matter of good dressings for her salads. Especially when she uses this same quick, easy mustard dress-up that I use:

Blend 2 teaspoons Colman's with a little cold water. Add to an 8 oz. jar of any prepared salad dressing you prefer.

Hot Weather Tip! During summer it seems especially important to me to deodorize and disinfect my refrigerator, food bins and drainboard frequently. To do the job just right and make it easy for myself I always reach for my Clorox bottle. Clorox is the most efficient germ killer of its kind. And I recommend it as a 4-in-1 aid to better housekeeping.

1. It's an extra-gentle bleach—free from caustic; conserves costly cottons and linens.
2. It's a dependable stain remover; removes stains from white and color-fast cottons and linens; from kitchen and bathroom surfaces.
3. It's an effective deodorizer. Clorox makes cottons and linens fresh and clean-smelling; kitchen and bathroom surfaces, too.
4. It's one of the world's great disinfectants. Adding Clorox to daily cleaning routine gives your family extra health protection. Just follow the Clorox label.

It's Second Nature with me to reach for Kitchen Bouquet whenever I make gravy. Pan-browning alone is so un dependable if you want gravy to have rich brown color. And who doesn't! So for 75 years, good cooks have prized Kitchen Bouquet as the easy, sure secret of gravy perfection. It's a unique blend of 14 choice vegetables, herbs and spices that not only gives gravy mouth-watering brown color, but brings out its delicious true meat taste. You'll find that a bottle lasts a long time, too, for it takes only a little Kitchen Bouquet to make gravy gloriously brown—extra-flavorful. The cost is too tiny to reckon!

Satisfying Food with satisfying flavor—and nourishment—that's hot, cooked "Cream of Wheat." And do you know that a bowlful costs less than one cent? For over 50 years "Cream of Wheat" has spelled "breakfast" for American folks, and I recommend it to you today. Then you'll be sure the members of your family start off in the morning well-fed.
And—with Enriched 5 Minute "Cream of Wheat" you have a fully digestible hot cereal in only 5 minutes of boiling. Plus Iron, Calcium, Phosphorus, Niacin, Vitamin B.
The name "Cream of Wheat" and the smiling chef on the package are registered trademarks of The Cream of Wheat Corporation and Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

NIGHT OUT WITH THE GIRLS
Group of Wives Play Bingo at Meeting.

Night Life for 'Reserve' Wife Gay in Greater Atlanta

By MARTHA SMITH

When the men in their lives go to meetings with their military Reserve Unit, the wives of the 108th Airborne Division go right along with them. No sitting and knitting at home for them; they reserve Reserve Night for social doings together.

On the third floor of the Army Building at 699 Ponce de Leon, a lounge is equipped with game tables, comfortable chairs and everything to lure the ladies in at night. It makes for a cozy evening, while the husband studies the military, to play bridge or bingo with the wives of his friends, or just to chat with your own new friends.

Mrs. Harry Manry relates that approximately 20 of the 108th Division wives take advantage of these facilities. "More come each meeting-night, though," she said. "And when the weather cools off I expect it'll come to be as important a night to us as it is to the men."

Her husband, Colonel Manry, is G-4 in the 108th.

Colonel David Tabor relates that these same facilities are available to wives of any reserve organizations and invites these ladies to make full use of the lounge.

Shown in the picture are Nancy King whose husband is Lt. Col. Andrew King; Loraine Cable, Pvt. Howard Cable's wife, and Louise Bunting, wife of Maj. Fred Bunting.

Child First Learns Manners at Home

Sometimes it seems hard to tell who needs teaching the most... the two-year-old who still pours his bowl of oatmeal over his head in a temper, or his mother who thinks it's an engaging trick. How old should your child be before you teach him table manners?

Child psychologists say it's never too soon to begin. They maintain manners come naturally anyhow. They say if parents have good manners then children will simply absorb those manners.

When to teach table manners? Certainly not at the table, say the experts. Mealtimes should be happy times, not teaching times. Teach manners, if you must, at tea parties. Or play games with the youngsters to show what's good and what's bad.

Harried parents are sure to reply that mealtimes are the nourishment times. And happy or not, children must get the proper food. But the psychologists have a come-back to this. They say:

A hungry child will eat. When your youngster says he doesn't like spinach, don't give him any. In fact, don't give him anything unless he asks for it. Don't scold, don't frown. Just pleasantly don't give him anything.

One psychiatrist believes the best way to teach manners is through example. If the child sees his mother leap from the table to answer the phone, likely he'll forget to excuse himself after the meal. Mother didn't excuse herself, so I won't either, is the way his mind works.

Same way with eating habits.

you'll see. If mother and father have disagreeable words at table, probably the child will say some disagreeable words, too.

Shallow Pan, Finger Teaches Pets To Eat

You can lead a kitten or a puppy to a water pan, but you have to teach him to drink. Drinking from a container doesn't come naturally to small animals. One suggestion is to dip a finger in the pan and let the pet lick from the finger. Gradually sink the finger in the liquid and presto! the pet is drinking alone before he knows it. Remember, though, if the water or milk is too deep, the animal may dunk his nose and be repelled.

No Cheating in Schools Here, Says Miss Jarrell

By JEAN ROONEY
Atlanta school students don't cheat.

"There is no parallel to the West Point cheating affair here," Miss Ira Jarrell, superintendent of Atlanta schools, says.

In the seven years in which Miss Jarrell has headed Atlanta's school system not a case of cheating has come into her hands. With Atlanta schools' average enrollment of 63,000, that's a record.

The kind of exams given today is the clue to local young people's integrity. In many cases the students choose their own test questions. Teachers let them use reference books to answer them, according to Miss Jarrell.

Reading speed, comprehension and abilities are tested rather than specific facts.

"How could a student get help on exams like that?" she asks.

Grade stressing causes students to cheat, Miss Jarrell also points out. Grading a child against other children, making him "live up to the Joneses," might force him to cheat, she continues.

Atlanta schools emphasize individual learning, independent thinking, instead of black and white marks.

"Supervision certainly retards cheating," Miss Jarrell admits, explaining that the Atlanta teacher stays with her class through tests periods. As a result, temptation does not arise.

"But by the time they are seniors in high school, we find that the teacher can be out of the room for long periods and no dishonesty results."

Miss Jarrell condemns the honor-pledge signing of the West Pointers as possibly the cause of their downfall.

F-Family A-Adult

"STRANGERS ON A TRAIN"—Alfred Hitchcock, whose name used to be a hallmark with the finest in the crime melodrama field has hit his well-known pace again with this thriller—one of the best he's ever fashioned. Here is a story with an almost incredible plot which is made to seem real through the adroit handling of this movie magician. His gifted megaphoning and the manner in which stars Farley Granger, Ruth Roman and Robert Walker respond to his direction place this flicker in the upper bracket. Miss

Robert Walker, Ruth Roman Star in Melodrama

Roman becomes a dramatic star of real stature, assisted in the romantic interludes by Granger, a current heartbeats. In creating the personality of a murdering lunatic, Hitchcock has handed Walker a part which puts him right in the midst of the Academy Award derby. It is the best performance Walker has ever given. The story is grim, but it's one the suspense fans won't want to miss. Expert lensing creates exciting mood and pace for the thriller. It's at the Fox. Adult classification.

"FRANCIS GOES TO THE RACES"—There's an axiom among show people which goes something like this: "Always leave 'em wanting more." Universal certainly left movie audiences throughout the nation wanting more when they completed their first story of the talking mule, "Francis." In this sequel, which is far and away funnier than the original, they run the garrulous Army mule through as absurd a mixture of wacky situations as you could imagine—depicting him as a dopster on the outcome of races, a four-legged psychiatrist who psycho-analyzes a race horse to rid her of an inferiority complex. Donald O'Connor is the mule's two-legged pal again. The guffaws come so thick and fast that we urge you to attend a matinee in order to digest all the furiously funny dialogue. It's at Loew's Grand. Family.

"WARPATH"—Just as we were hoping someone would come along with an honest to goodness, old time cowboys and Indians melodrama, Paramount unveiled this rousing story of the wild and woolly West which meets our fondest conception of how such a spectacle should be executed. Filmed in color, "Warpath" substitutes cavalrymen (under the command of Gen. Custer) for the cowboys to weave an imaginative story which mixes truth with hokum in an exciting way. Edmund O'Brien spurs romantically with Polly Bergen to supply the love interest. Forrest Tucker plays the "heavy" with a grim determination. Great scope is given the Indian war scenes, filmed along the Yellowstone River in Montana. This one opens Thursday at the Paramount, Family.

If Atlanta Were Bombed, Who'd Be Police?

Tips on How To Press Men's Suits

Good technique in hand pressing at home helps prolong the life of a suit.

The sleeves of the coat should be done first, with the crease about an inch in front of the forward seam, as the starting point. Press the underside of the sleeve first, then the outer. If you do not have a pressing pad for the shoulder, roll up a Turkish towel and slip it into the armhole.

Bagginess in the knees and shine on seams, elbows, wrists, collar, pockets, back and seat are the things to be corrected in pressing a suit. They are all remedied, to a limited extent, by light pressing or steaming through a moist cloth which leaves the material still damp.

Spread out the knees on the board, cover with a damp cloth and steam lightly with a moderately hot iron before you attempt to put in the crease. Then match the inner and outer leg seams and put in the crease, pressing the inside of the leg first.

Mixing Helps Man Dress Well

There's a knack in dressing casually . . . and doing it well. The trick is in the mixing. Choose colors, fabric and cut . . . each in the right proportion. Try a lightweight tweed jacket, a Tartan waistcoat, plain linen tie, gabardine slacks and a Tyrolean hat. Old-friend shirt can be the button-down oxford . . . but everything else is new this season. Look for narrower shoulders, easy-hanging jacket lines.

All this is part of the trend to comfort in clothes.

Mann calls it "the Dreyfus case of baseball," says Chandler could not support it factually but got off the hook by imposing silence on all involved under threats.

I have had wonderful benefit from supplementing my diet with calcium and vitamin D as you advise for hay fever and asthma. I hope you will always laugh off the small-souled critics. (Mrs. H. W.)

Answer—Thank you, Ma'am. Pamphlets on Asthma and Hay Fever available on request if you provide stamped, self-addressed envelope. One free to a customer. If you ask for both, inclose ten cents. Sometimes, unfortunately, the poor geek I laugh at turns out to be the boss—and out goes Brady on his ear.

SPURS

I wish to report the treatment I received from a podiatrist. I was suffering from heel spurs. They were removed by X-ray and have never recurred—that was six years ago. I kept at my work, but would have been laid up for a while had surgery been used. (D. G.)

Answer—Thank you. Heel spurs, a common cause of tender heel, often disappear regardless of the treatment or remedies used. The X-ray film is useful to show that the trouble is from spurs (osteophytes) when it might be mistaken for bursitis. Piece of thick felt cut out in center like corn plaster, may relieve pressure on tender point.

VITAMINS

A says when one takes several different vitamins each should be taken separately an hour apart. B says all may be taken at the same time. (Mrs. E. G.)

Answer—B wins.

Signed letters, not more than one page or 100 words long, pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease, diagnosis or treatment, will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Mail request to Dr. Brady, The Atlanta Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

Flood Control Cut Alarms Truman

By W. H. LAWRENCE
New York Times News Service, Special to The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—President Truman warned Wednesday that a 20 per cent cut in flood control and rivers and harbors appropriations recently voted by the House "will simply increase the risk that other floods, like the one that culminated in the disaster in the Kansas River basin three weeks ago, will catch us unprepared."

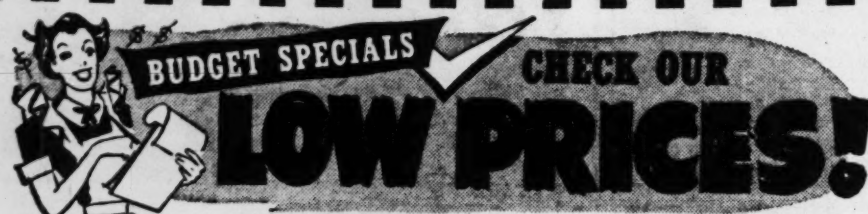

Mr. Truman, in a letter to Chairman Kenneth McKellar of the Senate Appropriations Committee, not only asked restoration of his full budget estimate, but submitted a new request for an additional $21,800,000 most of it for flood control in the Middle West.

In the January budget message and previous supplementary requests, the Administration had asked $220,478,000 for rivers and would force the suspension of work on a whole range of projects in many parts of the country."

Mr. Truman underlined the necessity of going ahead with six particular projects in the interests of national security. He listed these as the redevelopment of Niagara Falls, for which additional planning funds are needed; Albeni Falls dam in Idaho, which is under construction; Old Hickory lock and dam in the Cumberland River basin, Gavins Point dam in the Missouri River basin, Ice Harbor dam and Dalles dam in the Pacific Northwest, on which construction should begin at once.
